HONGKONG OFFICE: 14, DES VŒUX ROAD CI. LONDON OFFICE: 131, FLEET STREET, E.C.

Hongkong, 1st May, 1901

Though the details are by no means clear yet, it is plain from various telegrams reprovince of Chihli. An Ostasiatische Lloyd telegram from Peking, on the 23rd ult., reported news from Paotingfu that a Franco-German expedition reached the Great Wall on the previous day: The troops of General behind the Wall before the troops reached pedition was therefore to return. According to Japanese telegrams the ostensible object of the Franco-German expedition was to crush the remnants of "Boxer" bands. It is plain, however, from later despatches. that something far more serious than Boxer bands was encountered, and the statement that the expedition was to return was absurdly premature. The telegram which reached us late on Monday night brought the substance of Count von Waldersee's official report of serious fighting at the Great Wall of China. The dates of the battles are furnished by the Ostasiatische Lloyd telegram, which appeared in the China Mail, as the 23rd and 24th April ; and the exact places are fixed as a little to the north of the Huailu Pass on the first day, and the Kukuan Pass on the second. The German force, under the com- into the circumstances of the case.

mand of General KETTLEE, was arranged in four columns, and on the 23rd ult. an attack was made on the Chinese fortresses. which were not captured until after eleven hours fighting. On the 24th a Chinese force of 6,000 or 8,000 men, entrenched, it is stated, in front of the French at Kukuan Pass, was attacked and routed. Count VON WALDERSEE's report, however, makes it look as if the Chinese were the attacking party, for it is said that they were "everywhere repulsed and were pursued to Kukuan." The German losses are put, on the same authority, at seven killed and thirty-two wounded, while they captured thirteen quick-firing guns. The Chinese losses are reported to be severe.

Now, though we are quite in the dark as to who these troops are with whom the Ger-. mans have had so severe a struggle—for the 6 French appear to have taken no part in the fighting-it is obvious that they must have been trained soldiers and well armed, either, 2 of the Imperial army or of the provincial forces. A paragraph in the Peking and o Tientsin Times, of the 20th ult., throws a little light. It is as follows :- " A few days ago, says the Je Je, Count WALDERSEE received information that a large Chinese force under General Liu was apparently making hostile preparations in Shansi, and some cavalry and artillery started for Chengting-fu to reconneitre. Prince "Chine and Li Hund-chane, on learning this, were much disturbed and at once 'notified the Chinese troops to withdraw.' n If it is a fact that these are the men who opposed General Kettler, the aspect of and affairs is anything but promising. The natives in the North appear to have the idea firmly rooted in their minds that Count Von Waldersee has in contemplation an expedition to Hsianfu. It is probable that this is the disastrous result of those errors in the Commander-in-Chief's policy on which we have commented more than once, as in our issue of yesterday. Of course if the Chinese troops invaded Chihli with hostile intent, there was no course open to the Allies' leader but to drive them out with the greatest expedition We guarantee our Wines and Spirits to possible. But more than once in the past be genuine only when bought direct from us | few months collisions appear to have occured in the Colony or from our authorised between the Allied and Chinese troops which arose from misapprehensions. We can only trust that this is not what happened on the 23rd and 24th ult. It is far preferable to think that the two buttles were the result of wanton aggression of the Chinese troops. The question cannot [35 actually be decided, however, before the arrival of further details.

An unfortunate accident, terminating fatally, attended the discharge of a Government official's duties early yesterday morning. Shortly after. five c'clock Inspector Mills, of the Sanitary Board, who had received intimation of a case of overcrowding, paid a surprise visit to a registered lodging-house for chair and ricksha-coolies at 2, George's Lane. Immediately on his entry there was a cry of "Pongpan" (inspector), and a rush was made for the roof of the house. The roof is a flat one, with no protecting parapet Inspector Mills followed the frightened mob to the top of the house, and in the scramble to of the singer, with 'The Owl' as an encore; escape that ensued, a chair-coolie either fell or was jostled over. He fell to the ground, a distance of about sixty feet, and was instantly killed. Inspector Mills reported the matter to the police, who had the body conveyed to the mortuary. It is stated that all the indemnities for deztruction of property in the three-Northern prefectures of Honan have been settled for 170,000 taels. One of the most northerly lisions is Wu An, where there were many converts slain. Recently a French officer with a detachment of soldiers went from Shuntefu to Wu An, apparently to exact reparation. This brings the foreign troops to within 180 li of the Chinese troops who have been waiting long at Changtefu, and it is feared that a collision is inevitable.

A Hsianfu telegram of the 22nd ult. to the N.-C. Daily News says:-There is now no doubt at all that the Imperial Court is about to leave Heian in the very near future. Telegrams were sent yesterday to all the provincial high authorities who had been supplying the Court with money, silks, satins, and the thouand and one necessaries needed at Hsian since the Court's arrival in this city in October last, to stop sending any more supplies. In consequence of this quite a number of caravans on their way from the South to Shansi have been stopped half-way, en route, and ordered to await further orders before continuing their journey. The destination of the Court, however, remains a secret at present.

In the Yokohama Chiho Saibansho on the 18th ult. a meeting of creditors of Messrs. Middleton & Smith was held. The meeting, the Japan Herald reports, was attended by about fifteen creditors, presided over by Judge Mabuchi. The claims of the principal creditors were accepted by the firm, but there are some claims which it disputes, and in connection with which further legal action will be taken, 'Among the chief items of claims settled were the sum of 1,072.85 ven for house-rent to the China Trading Company, and of 40,527.37 year to the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank. The Russo-Chinese Bank agreed to admit the payment of 2,006.69 yen to the bankrupt firm with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent. per annum. Mr. B. H. Pearson waived his claim of 1,030 yen. The claims of other creditors are still undecided.

A letter from the N.-C. Daily Times Changking correspondent shows that the province of Kweichau is not re-opened as a promising field for missionary enterprise. There have again been massacres of Christians on a considerable scale, among the victims being a large number of aboriginal Christians who are entirely harmless. It is again officials who are involved in this persecution, and this is not to be wondered at, says our Shanghai contemporary, when it is recalled that the murder of Mr. Flomming in Kueichau occurred some three years ago, and that the case is not settled yet. CANTON.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

Canton, 29th April." THE NEW LOCAL STEAMSHIP LINE. A certain steamboat company, founded by Chinese and others, intends to run a line of river steamers between Canton, Hongkong, and Macao and wants to construct a wharf on the river-bank facing Kee Cheeng Street. The inhabitants of this and other streets near by strongly oppose the scheme, as they consider it would be an obstruction and great inconvenience to them to have such a wharf near by, which may open a way for the thieves to escape, and an easy ingress into the streets. The inhabitants gathered together to the number of over a thousand men, carrying lanterns on which were painted the characters "Beg favour," and went to the Viceroy's yamen to state their grievance in a petition, and ask His Excellency to refuse permission for the construction of such a wharf. His Excellency replied in a rescript that he would refer the matter to the Magistrate and the Harbour Master of the Customs for investigation and report.

ARMS SMUGGLING. It is reported that a large quantity of firearms have been smuggled in by Wuchow and West River by various methods to supply the rebels. One of these methods was to put the rifles in a coffin and mark thereon the name of the dead, and his family and the street it was to be taken to. Upon enquiry it was found that no such family existed in that place. It was entirely, a bogus affair, and on opening the coffin a great quantily of firearms was

PLAGUE IN CANTON.

Plague has made its annual appearance again in Canton, especially in the locality known as Tin Sum, in the Western suburb. In one street several families have died within twelve hours. Every year between spring and summer the disease reappears, owing, some say, to the bad state of the weather, the moisture, and the recent rain penetrating and liturating thoroughly the soil, which brings for in a sort of vapour the germ of the plague. The underclothing, sacks, shoes, and other things of these who have died of plague are generally burnt in front of the house, thus rendering the spread of the disease much easier and quicker, while the ashes of the barnt articles are thrown into the river to be carried to distant places. ATTEMPTED BLACKMAIL BY PIRATES.

Some pirates in the village of Luk Lao, Shun Tak district, sent letters an the name of Lew Man, the pirate chief, and others, to Wong payment of 5,000 tacks blackmail; to Colonel Ying Son of 3,000 tacks; and to Li Ka Cheuk, General in command of the army, 5,000 tacks. The General was formerly a captain in charge of some soldiers to protect Shameen, but was subsequently promoted to be a general. As soon as he received the letter he became highly enraged, and offered a reward of fine hundred dollars for the apprehension of the pirate chief Lew Man. The letters threaten to seize the officials and thurn their yamen if the money is not forthcoming.

BURIAL OF ONE OF TUAN'S VICTIMS. The remains of the late Chang Yen-hwan have been sent back to Fatshan for interment. He was a native of Fatshan and of very humble origin. He had passed successfully all the necessary literary examinations and was appointed a Vice-President of the Board of War. He had been abroad, too, as Chinese Minister. Before the Peking crisis he was banished beyond the frontier of Tartury for some imaginary offence, and during the crisis Prince Tuan sent a false Imperial decree and had him decapitated. He was well known to be

The gaol at the Magistrate's yamen in the Hok Shan district was on the 16th ult. broken into by over 2,000 thieves, and more than ten convicts were rescued from the gaol. They then went into the yamen, broke open the Treasury, and stole therefrom a large quantity of money and clothing. The Magistrate Cheong came to Canton to see the Viceroy STILL MOVE PIRACIES.

Usually the silk liandkerchiefs for export to foreign countries are sent to the villages of Lum Tso and Pak-kao to be embroidered with flowers and patterns; but of late, on account of so many robberies and piracies, the junks that plied between these places and Canton have refused to take these articles, and ceased their plying on the 20th ult. It is a great incomvenience to the embroidery-shops in Canton and an obstruction to their business, for they cannot get women to work at their articles for the supply of foreign markets.

It was a pity, therefore, that there was not a steadier and stronger breeze, so that there could have been a close and hard fought struggle without flukes between the two. The course was from the Police Pier round Stoneentter's and the Rock off Cowiechow, distance 15 miles. The tide had just turned and was beginning to run strong to the westward. while a light East wind was blowing at the line. A good start was effected, Bonito and Almond being first, Bonitoon Alannah's weather. On the reach to Stonecutter's Erica, keeping well to leeward, drew out a long lead, but behind the Island the wind went very light and all closed up in a banch. At the west end of the Island all except Bonito, began to work up close under the shore to cheat the tide. Bonito, however, stood boldly out in hopes of getting the south wind first, and was shortly after followed by Alannah. For some time the wind was so ight as to barely keep steerage way on the vachts, but after a little the south wind, which had been blowing there all the morning, was soon coming again, and Bonito, getting it first and constantly meeting the freshening wind. lrew out a long lead from Alannah, both lying up for the rock and passing to the west of Cowiechow Island. The remainder of the fleet. headed by Iris, stood across towards Green Island, keeping in the slack of the tide but not gotting nearly somuch wind. Banto rounded the rook about four o'clock with Alannah about halfa-mile astern. The latter, however, seemed to get hung up in a light patch and could not get round the rock until after Iris, Maid Marian and Erica had passed her. The Bonito drew out a long lead while the rest were rounding the rock, as the wind dropped considerably after she rounded, and she got home nearly halfun-hour before the time limit, thus winning the championship for the year running. SIR A. MILNER'S BEPO. T. The Blue Book, just issued, publishes a desnatch of Sir Alfred Milner's, dated the 6th February, summarising the situation, in which he says that it is useless to deny that the last half year has been one of retrogressionboth materially and merally. Fortunately the country has great recuperative powers, and it will not take many years to repair the economic ravages of war. The loyalists are sick to death of the war, through which so many have been ruined; but they are prepared to fight on indefinitely in order to make South Africa indisputably and for ever one country under the British flag.

LOVE AND I.

JEAN MIDDLEMAS. (Author of "Patty's Purtner," &c.)

A picture was her most valued possession,-Lik- a ray of sunshine in a gloomy spot it seemed to shine forth from its easel in her little sitting-room; and, however weary Rhoda might be when she looked at it, she invariably experienced a sense of joy.

A picture, it was only a picture! Those around her wondered why she loved it Orsett Farm, of which Rhoda was mistress, was a rough, tumble-down old place; hard work and frugal fare had by tradition ever existed within its walls, but with Rhoda's inheritance it almost appeared as if the old order of things was passing away and a new era was commencing.

years proviously, having, as he said on his death-bed, "done the best he could for his girl, and given her a good education."

The folk around chorused "that it was too good, that Rhoda's head was turned by it, else she would not have fussed over that silly picture and had a sitting-room of her own that was filled with fal-lass like 'my lady's' bower. If there were not good, sensible Mother Lane to see to the farm, where would Rhoda be?" they wondered.

But kindly, practical Mother Lane was dead, and Rhoda was left alone with only Maggie, the old servant, to tend and help her. "Of course, she'll sell up and go to some town-London may be, the only life fit for such as she " was the verdict of the neighbourhood. But Rhoda had no such intention-" what was the use of education if it did not fit her to fill the position in life to which she was called, was her sensible argument-and to succeed her father and mother in the inheritance they had left was surely her duty. Then folks said "she was too young and too pretty; besides wha could a girl of twenty two know about farming and how could she live all alone at Orsett

Truly there was no pleasing the interfering

Rhoda, however, only laughed and answered that-" Time would remedy the evil and that for the present, she had old Maggie to help and direct her."

So, notwithstanding criticism and interference, Rhoda went her own way, and with Maggie's help worked the form, though perhaps scarcely to advantage, for I had had yet her experience to learn, and morec er was hampered with want of capital and not a little debt.

She never said a word; she was not of the type to blame those who were gone, or to contradict when folk alluded to Mrs. Lane's wonderful cleverness and aptitude for accounts, though the books would have shown without a speken word, that during the two years her mother had been in power, there had been such a miserable falling-off in receipts that the debts Rhoda had inherited with the land would not be easily paid off.

No one knew this but herself and Maggie, and it was their fixed intention to do their best without complaining. The struggle was, however, no light one, while the work was hard and almost endless. Occasionally only could Rhoda escape from it and take a few moments rest in her pretty sitting room, which the neighbours condemned. Then it was that the sight of her picture came: as a ray of hope. Its colouring was so vivid, it lightened up the whole room. In the foreground, among flowers and shrubs, sat a sweet-faced woman, clad in a satin gown, painted by a master hand. She was dreaming, dreaming of a happy future, while gazing at her over some shrubs in the dark back-ground was a young cavalier, on whose shoulders wings were faintly but surely defined.

"Love and I." Rhoda had named her picture, and at times she almost funcied she herself was the lady who was dreaming there, and that, one day, she too niight see the cavalier with wings. Then she would think of her hard work and menial occupations, and smile at her own folly. She knew nothing of the pedigree of the picture, had not even heard it ascribed to any particular artist. She had found it in a lumber-room at the top of the farm-house-had cleaned it and had it framed. The intuitive, artistic sense, with which she was thoroughly imbued, had told her it was beautiful and she loved it farther than this she knew nothing. --Of late she had been so sorely worried by want of ready money, that even the picture afforded her no consolation. Something, however, she must do to raise a few pounds, but to sell that picture never entered her head, especially as the few shillings she supposed it would fetch would avail nothing. Her ledger in front of her, the pen in her hand, she was sitting in her little room, counting over the situation of affairs, when Maggie put her head in at th

"It will be Maister Lucas from Borthwick. He's wantin' to speak with ye-says ye wrote

" All right, Maggie-ask him to come in. A little old man with a rugged, deeply furrowed face, on which however kindness and good nature beamed, hobbled into the room. Rhoda held out her hand to him. He had known her father well, and had always been on frien lly terms with her and hors. "What can I do for you, my child," he asked

-" no trouble, I hope. "Only temporary trouble I trust, Mr. Lucas. From inexperience I suppose I have got a little beyond myself, but I am determined to succeed, and the accounts shall balance—aye, overbalance to the good." "Bravo-bravo-and you will succeed, perseverance always does it. I began with ten shillings in the savings bank, and I have always managed to keep my head above water. Is it a loan you want. Missie?"

"No-no-no. I want to sell some of the superfluous furniture we have in the house. few rooms shut up could be well spared."

"Superfluous furniture—of course—that is my line," and he looked round. His eye fell on the picture. "By jove-there you have a gem. Sell that, and it will keep the wolf from the door for many a long day."

A HELPLESS CRIPPLE!

N. Bengert, of Norhorne, says:—For nineteen months I lay a helpless cripple from Rheumatism. The weight of my body was reduced from 170 lbs. to 130 lbs., a proof of the terrible pain I had to endure. During all this time, I sought a cure, but after using everything I heard of, such as animents, electricity, Türkish Baths, and above ill uselessly employing physicians, I considered myself incurable, especially so, when the last physician told me that he would not accept any more money from me, as the case was beyond the human grasp. At this time I noticed your advertisement in one of the morning papers. I ordered Little's Oriental Balm with very littleconfidence, but I was surprised after using 2 to 3 bottles. I was greatly improved and the continued use of your wonderful remedy oured me, Prices quoted f.o.b. New York, or c.i.f. with the help of God, of Rhoumatism.

For my part I shall do all in my power to spread its merita. Sold at Re. 1 per buttle, Agents for Hongkong:-THE VICTORIA [217--1 DISPENSARY, LD.

Rhoda so energetically cried-"no, no; I shall never part with that," that Mr. Lucas, who had got up from his seat and was standing gazing at the picture, turned and looked at her in amazemeat. Only for a moment, however, was his gaze fixed on her, he could not keep his eyes off the marvellous picture. "French," he marmured. "I believe it to be genuine, and I know something about pictures, though I am only a furniture dealer." While he spoke he took a magnifying loop out of his pocket and carefully examined the corner of the canvas. "Exactly—just what I thought—there is no doubt of it. Where in the world did you get this picture, Miss Rhoda?" "I found it in the attic, and I leve it-I shall never part with it -not even if I have not a crumb of bread to eat.'

"So-so-but that is feelish, child. Money comes before sentiment in this practical world. "Nothing will induce me to part with that Her father, Farmer Lane, had died some two picture. It would be like parting with the half of my being.

> "Yet you say you are short of coin and would rob yourself of useful household furniture in order to produce the money. Now, I have a client who sometimes employs me to pick up antiques, curies and such like, and I-know he would give a sum for that picture that would run into four figures.

> "Mr. Lucas," said Rhoda, by the frigidity of her manner showing that she wished the subject of the picture to be set on one side-"would you mind coming into the dining room and see> ing some of the furniture I wish to sell!" He could not refuse to follow her, but he did not on that account feel any the more decided that he would not again refer to the picture. The client to whom he had alluded would rejoice in becoming the possessor of such a gem-and of course the commission he himself would obtain on the sale was by no means to be despised. 'He knew Rhoda's disposition, however-knew that she was determined, and, as he called it, self-opinionated. He must use tact. much tact, if he intended to bring this bargain to a successful issue. He appraised the furniture she showed him, appraised it too at a much lower figure than he would have done, had he not had the ulterior object of starving her into selling the picture. It was not altogether fair behaviour to the daughter of an old friend, but commerce is scarcely wont to make men as straightforward and honest as they would otherwise be-nor did Sam Lucas' dealings shev much straightforwardness, seeing he did not again refer to the picture before he left the farm. He said he would send a cart on the morrow to fetch away the objects he had the amount agreed on, he departed. She naturally thought that her treasure was to be left in peace, whereas the turmoil that so frequently gathers around Love and I, was only bought, and having given Rhoda a cheque for just beginning. For the nonce, however, she was basking in a roseate hour. The cheque he had given her was enough for present emergencies, so that trouble was off, her mind-she could, from her favourite easy chair, gaze on the inspired canvas and live in that aream of the future it invariably suggested.

But the business of the farm soon called her to more practical matters, and during the next few days she was so busy that she thought no further of the French gem.

Coming home from an outlying part of her estate where some broken patings had been taking up her attention, she was surprised to see a stranger in the porch. With excusable weman's vanity, she tossed off a sun-bounet which, though perhaps picturesque, was scarcely becoming, and went towards him. He lifted his soft hat and stood with it in his hand—a true type of a well-bred Englishman, clad in a knicker-bocker suit of grey tweed-which set. off his face withal being handsome and honest.

"Is this Orsett Farm?" he asked, with scarcely the amount of assurance he usually displayed, since khoda looked very unlike a farmer's daughter, and he thought "it was somewhat trying to a fellow to expect a milkmaid and to meet a Princess.

"Yes, this is Orsett Farm," and she looked at him askance, which was scarcely encouraging. He seemed to be getting every monent more and more confused, for he murmared, speaking with some hesitation—"I believe I have lost She smiled and looked at him with a twinkle in her eye. "It seems almost like it." she said. All the aplomb and coolness of manner was on her side, and yet to men is ascribed courage and "You scarcely seem to believe me-and-

He looked into her sweet, pretty face, which was beaming with amusement, and laughed. "And yet," she repeated mischievously-"] t not usual to finish a sentence?"

"Yes, I suppose so when you are not so utterly dazzled—by the sunlight—that you don't know what to say. "I am sorry the sun should have such a de pressing effect. Perhaps you would like to sit down and rest-later one of my men can sho you the way." ————

"I should indeed like a rest: though you do not believe it, I am very weary with walking." "And the sunshine," she added, as she led the way into the house.

Not only is the Directory as full and complete in each case as it can be made, but each Colony Port, or Settlement is prefaced by a DESCRIPTION, carefully revised each year, most of which will serve as accurate Guides for the Tourist, giving every detail in connection with the places, their History, Topography, &c., &c. The Information in these Descriptions, consisting of a hundred interesting articles, pasked with facts concisely set out, and containing statistics of the TRADE of each Country and Port, would alone suffice to fill a large volume.

NOW ON SALE. IMPERIAL QUARTO TINGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY. WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARING

PRONUNCIATION. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. | Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given. the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hithorto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration :--Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000 whilstethis work contains more than 50,000 English words. and upwards of 600,000. Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto published. For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasionally.

It comprises upwards of two thousand large quarto pages. 4 Vols. IMPERIAL QUARTO, Price $20. A Large REDUCTION in PRICE is made to Purchasers of SIX or more Copies.
